AI Mode All Visual matches

whose work is this?

This popular meme image is originally a 3D animation created by a stock footage contributor known as VideoMagusFX. Shutterstock

The clip, titled "Skeleton Working On Computer", was originally uploaded to stock marketplaces like Shutterstock and VideoHive. Over the years, the still frame of the skeleton looking at the monitor has become an iconic, viral internet reaction meme. Shutterstock +2

Would you like to know more about the history of this meme or how it is typically used in online jokes?

AI responses may include mistakes. Learn more

Reddit

Where did this GIF of a skeleton looking shocked at a computer originate from? : r/HelpMeFind

Ask anything

Skeleton Working On Computer - Front Side - Shutterstock

Funny realistic 3D animation for grunge, comedy, corporate, horror and Halloween art, A skull stands by a working computer in the ...

videohive.net

Skeleton At Computer - Pack Of 4 by VideoMagusFX | VideoHive

14 Aug 2021 — Buy Skeleton At Computer - Pack Of 4 by VideoMagusFX on VideoHive. Skeleton working, typing, writing and reading at desktop comput...

thats not the same image

You are completely right, and I apologize for the mix-up! I mistook this for the passive "waiting skeleton" stock footage.

The image you provided is a still frame from the "Skeleton Shocked at Computer" (or "Skeleton Typing") viral GIF, where the skeleton turns its head, looks directly at the screen with jaw-dropping shock, and frantically begins typing.

This specific animation is a lost media mystery. Despite extensive crowdsourced tracking efforts by internet communities (like Reddit's r/HelpMeFind), the exact identity of the original animator or project remains unknown.

The visual clues behind its creation point to a few specific details:

- Creation Era: Based on the low-resolution 3D rendering style, the design of the CRT-style monitor, and the lighting, it is estimated to have been created in the late 1990s or early 2000s.
- Likely Purpose: Because it has never been successfully tied to a specific movie, TV show, or video game, archivists believe it was originally a standalone 3D test animation clip or a piece of early stock media.
- Pop Culture Use: It has taken on a massive life of its own as a reaction clip, frequently used in text-to-speech meme videos (such as the "Jellybean roasts" from 2021–2022) to represent extreme shock or frantically looking something up.

AI responses may include mistakes. Learn more

19 Nov 2025 — Where did this GIF of a skeleton looking shocked at a computer originate from? KrishMortyJunior. Where did this GIF of a skeleton ...

Reddit

[PC] [MID 2000's] Old Educational Pc Game Where A Skeleton ...

22 Feb 2022 — I drew this skeleton guy from this really onscure and niche game... is that the person sitting at the computer was waiting so long...

Reddit

The original „staring skeletons" comes from „Berserk" 1997 anime

7 May 2026 — About late 2021 to early 2022, there was a trend where people would take clips from a PNGtuber named Jellybean and repeatedly "roa...

